

Project ABC is About Building Connections...

... connecting children, families, and professionals

...connecting professionals and early childhood agencies

...connecting agencies and policymakers

Project ABC is designed to create change at the beginning of children's lives. Even as infants and toddlers, children need support to optimize their healthy social and emotional development, which for some children includes mental health services.

Our goal at Project ABC is to ensure that families, professionals, and community organizations work together to support every child's healthy development through awareness of the central role that relationships play in building healthy lives.

What is Project ABC doing?

- training professionals on early childhood mental health and social-emotional development
- advocating for systems change to support families with young children
- sharing information and resources with caregivers and community members
- implementing a 'system of care' model of service delivery for children from birth to age 5
- monitoring our efforts to ensure that we are providing the highest quality services
